

CUBS' SECRETARY GOES HUNTING AND IS HUNTED

Bloodthirsty Herd of Caribou
Chases Charley Williams Up
Tree, Where He Intrudes on Bruin Family.

A woeful tale is wafted Chicago-ward from Trude Lake, Wisconsin, where Comiskey's brave men have been trying to forget.

Part of the tale is told in a letter from Charley Williams, secretary of the Cubs. The letters begin with the statement that Charley is coming home, and then goes on:

"Believe me, the Wisconsin woods are no place for a quiet, peace-loving baseball secretary, and hunting is nix."

And then the letter goes on to repeat that Charley is coming home.

It appears that Charley didn't know very much about hunting, but was willing to take a chance at anything once. So he borrowed a gun from one of the party, and went bravely forth to kill a moose.

He got lost, and while trying to get his bearings, came suddenly upon a herd of bloodthirsty caribou. The caribou also came upon Charley, and Charley fled.

He saw a tree that looked as if the scenery might be pretty nice from the top, and swung himself into the branches, thereby interrupting a passionate re-union of the Bruin family.

At the same instant he saw the bears, Charley saw another tree that looked as if it might give even a better view than the one he was in.

He made the other tree while Bruin and Mrs. Bruin were still wondering who the strange animals might be, and took up a commanding position—meaning one near the top.

Several hours later, a searching party from the camp found Charley still in a commanding position and greatly interested in the scenery from above. He still had the gun over his shoulder, and he hadn't fired a shot.

As Charley rises to remark, there are times when hunting is nix.

Widows Entitled to Money: To Be Paid This Week.

Widows of the firemen who lost their lives with Chief Horan in the Morris Packing Co. fire last December, will receive before the end of the week the money which was contributed for them by citizens of Chicago.

The distribution of the $220,000 after ten months was assured with the signing of releases. This action followed the decision of H. N. Higinbotham and other members of the citizens' committee not to appeal the ruling of Judge William F. Cooper that the widows and orphans were entitled to the money subscribed, and the committee was without authority to invest it for them.

Th' most popular girls are those who can make a young feller think everything he says is funny.